Seventeen Orators Voice Opinions At Annual Competition

Clarence R. Gross Judged
Winner Of Bovey
Shield

VARIED OPINIONS

Subject Was "Resolved That World Is Going To Dogs"

Ample proof that interest in debating and public speaking is on a high plane at McGill was given Friday afternoon in the Union Music Room when seventeen Freshmen met in the annual Bovey Shield Contest to debate on either side of the proposition "Resolved that the world is going to the dogs."

Clarence R. Gross was adjudged winner of the contest in upholding the negative side of the resolution. He attacked all pessimists saying "We are dominated by a group of blue-noses; everybody is too pessimistic." He went on to say that if he had the desire to sound a note of optimism and to voice his sincere confidence in the future of the world. "Only the carpenter, the sneerer go to the dogs," he added. He expressed the belief that in every man there is a bit of God, and that the sum total of this fragment of divinity in all human beings goes to make up our conception of Him. It is therefore illogical that God's divine purpose in this world should go astray.

Novel Argument
Graham Gould, in repudiating the proposition, took a novel procedure. He took as the basis of his argument the statement "By their women shall ye judge them," and he went on to trace the rise of women in the human scene, as exemplified by their rational advancement in style.

After tracing the rise of Man briefly from the most primitive days, Mr. Burgoonmaster stated, with reference to Shakespeare and Bunyan: "If we say these men led the world to the dogs, we are insulting our own intelligence. Our duty is to look forward in life with hope." J. R. Burt, moreover, emphatically said: "We are not witnessing the toboggan slide of the world."

Pessimists Numerous
The pessimists, however, were quite well represented too. Leonard Liverman, surveying present world conditions, the military situation in Europe, the Manchurian menace, the financial chaos the analogy between our time and Imperial Rome at the brink of destruction, could not help but feel that the world was rushing headlong to its doom. The religious situation, bigotry and intolerance were adding fuel to the heap. Modern apathy, especially that at McGill was a source of alarm to E. H. Piper.

Finer Instincts Gone
The total absence of finer instincts in Man, the lack of religious beliefs, and degeneracy of modern women was a source of alarm to A. Orellsten. "It is horrible to contemplate," he maintained, "that girls of sixteen go tea dancing with men twice their age." "Modern literature is journalism, modern drama — the movies. There is no sense of art and beauty left in the world," argued Myer Schechter.

Bovey Speaks
The chairman of the meeting was John McLeish, Arts '35, President of the Junior Debating League. While the judges, Prof. J. King Gordon, Prof. Paul F. McCullough, and Edmund Collard, retired for their deliberations, Col. Wilfred Bovey, donor of the shield, addressed the gathering, telling the history of the Shield competition, and stating that "the success of the McGill debaters is due to persistent efforts." Edmund Collard delivered the judges' decision.

Speakers' Names
The following were the speakers: C. R. Gross, L. Liverman, G. Gould, G. Kleiner, M. Burgoonmaster, Ben Schechter, A. Pick, E. H. Piper, V. Bychow-ski, J. R. Burt, S. B. Smith, M. Schechter, John Peacock, Jack Slapack, A. Orellsten, E. Orellsten.

Maritime Club
On Wednesday evening a meeting of the members of the Maritime Club will be held in Strathcona Hall at eight o'clock. The business agenda includes discussion of the plans for a dance. All students and professors who hail from the Maritimes, are strongly urged to attend.

Rifle Club Shoots
Members of the McGill Outdoor Rifle Club held their regular Sunday morning meeting yesterday. All the members met at Strathcona Hall, and there proceeded to the range.

PRINCIPAL ISSUES APPEAL FOR GENEROSITY IN FEDERATED CHARITIES CAMPAIGN

The generosity and the humanity of the community will be put to its greatest test in the forthcoming appeal of the Federated Charities for funds to carry on the relief of the poor and destitute of the City.

The need has never been greater. To thousands of our fellow citizens the success of this appeal is a matter of life and death. It is a tragedy of the greatest magnitude that in this land of great resources, in a year when crops are abundant, so many decent people and good citizens are losing their courage, their morale and their self-respect, because they cannot earn a living and are in starvation and want. The situation is serious and demands immediate relief. We cannot wait for such a problematical thing as the improvement of economic conditions. This winter, as never before, it is the duty of all who are well-clad, well-housed, well-fed, to help the less fortunate.

I appeal to the students and faculty of McGill to give to the point of sacrifice, in order that we may not fail in raising the $19,500, which is our objective in the Federated Charities' Campaign.

John Hackett Talks
Over Radio Tonight

JOHN T. HACKETT, K.C., M.P., will speak over the air through station CKAC tonight at eight o'clock, under the auspices of the Graduates' Society of McGill University. His subject will be: "The Student in the University."

Mr. Hackett, who now represents Stanstead, Quebec, in the federal parliament, was largely responsible for the promotion and organization of the Students' Council at McGill, co-operating with such men as the late Guy Drummond to bring about student autonomy in student affairs.

Music Of Eddie Alexandor's
Orchestra Pleases
Crowd

About 110 couples gathered in the Union ballroom on Friday evening to dance to the strains of Eddie Alexandor's orchestra at the first union informal of the year.

Tables clustered around the wall of the ballroom in cabaret fashion, an innovation as far as informals at this university are concerned, proved a great success, and in all probability the scheme will be followed at other informals held during the year.

Tenor, Was First Director
Of Glee Club

HELLO Wilfred, got a match?

A tall, slightly corpulent gentleman poked a green-hatted head into Colonel Bovey's office Friday morning, and greeted with a hearty laugh his life-long friend and companion in arms during the Great War.

The man was Edmund Burke, world-famed Canadian tenor, acclaimed by audiences at the Metropolitan Opera in New York, at the Paris Opera, and in Covent Garden, London, now in what he refers to as "the most discredited business in the world"—banking.

Graduate In Law
Mr. Burke, a graduate of the McGill Law Faculty in 1900, is on a short visit in Montreal. He was one of the founders of the McGill Glee Club, and director of the club for three years.

"Newspapermen—not a word!" he declared—but, cornered between Colonel Bovey and the Daily reporter, he decided to sit down and talk things over.

His memory roamed to the McGill Glee Club which he helped to found in 1897, and to experiences during the war as unofficial musical director for the Canadian army.

Colonel Bovey reminded him that he had a habit during the war of "kidnapping" soldiers with fine voices from other British regiments and inducing them to join the second Canadian division, which had built up a fine musical organization, thanks to his deceptions. Mr. Burke was officially during the war A.D.C. to General Sir Henry Birstall, but his activities were of a varied nature.

Too Much Trouble!
He admitted causing more trouble for the Canadian general staff than any other three men, and recollected the time, when in a quandary as to how to get a celebrated Belgian conductor from London to Paris for a special concert, he dressed him in a Canadian uniform and brought him across with a contingent of Canadian troops. "I don't think the authorities ever found out," he declared, "how that Belgian got over to France."

Another of his recollections was that of a dinner at Lord Beaverbrook's home when Bonar Law, then in the Lloyd George ministry, was present. Asked to sing, Mr. Burke Bonar Law resigned from the ministry. "I've seen"—and the next day gave vent to "Nobody Knows the Try."

"It was probably my singing that did it," he added laughingly.

Historical Club To Gather Tomorrow

The Historical Club will hold a business meeting in the History Conference Room tomorrow at one o'clock. All members are urged to attend in order that the executive for the coming year may be elected. Anyone wishing to join the Club is also requested to be present. Membership is open to all interested men students.

University Coat Of Arms Is Incorrectly Employed By Daily

McGill News Also Misuses
Official Emblem Of College

RULES ARE GIVEN

Words "Grandescunt Aucta
Labore" For Official
Sign Only

Ever since its inception the McGill Daily has been parading under false colours. The Daily however is not alone in this crime for the McGill News, published by the Graduates Society, is a companion in sin, having done the same thing for several years.

It was learned last night that the coat-of-arms gracing the top of the front page of the Daily is the official coat of arms and motto of the University, and as such may be used only by it. It properly appears on letter heads, calendars, announcements, and any official notices issued by the University. It is the official coat-of-arms because it bears the inscription, "Grandescunt aucta labore."

Differs Radically
The coat of arms which should be used by the Daily, and the McGill News consists of a shield on which are superimposed an open book, with a crown on either side, and directly below it three martlets; the whole being encircled by a scroll containing the name of the university.

In addition to the above there is the coat of arms used by the Library as a book plate, and by the Library School upon their announcement covers. There is also the official seal of the University, which is in the custody of the Registrar. The coat of arms and motto are encircled by five medallions bearing symbols of the Faculties, all enclosed in a wreath and a band with the inscription "Universitas Collegii McGill Montre-gis." This form is never used, excepting as the official seal of the University upon University documents issued by the University as a whole.

Has Coat Of Arms
McGill has a coat of arms, but no crest. In strict heraldic practice, institutions may have coats of arms but they never have crests which are personal badges.

Economics Society Commences Season

Tees And Hasler Speak On Duff Report Next Thursday

Herbert H. Tees and William Hasler will be the speakers at the opening meeting of the Political Economy Club in the Smoking Room of the Arts Building next Thursday evening, on the subject of "The Canadian Railway Situation and the Duff Report." This subject is a very up to date one as the abstract of the Duff Report only arrived in the Library a few days ago, and few students have as yet had access to it.

The Political Economy Club will hold six meetings this year, once a month as in the past. These subjects on topics of current interest, are chosen with the object of arousing discussion, and the meetings always close with a period of questions and argument, following the refreshments.

The executive of the club this year is composed of Allison Walsh, president and Bert Tees, vice-president, both Fourth Year Honor students in the Department of Economics and Political Science; secretary, William Hasler, and treasurer, Maurice Boxer, third year honor students. Mr. Leacock is honorary president, and Dr. Hemmison and Dr. Day are honorary vice-presidents.

Noted Pathologist To Address Medical Students In Evening

Medical Students of McGill will have the opportunity to hear Dr. Nichols, the noted medical man and pathologist, speak this evening. The meeting will be held in the Medical Building and refreshments will be served at the close of the evening. It is hoped that a large number will attend.

Rev. Hicks Preaches

Sunday Worship Service took place yesterday morning in Divinity Hall Chapel. The speaker was the Rev. and A. Cleveland Hicks.

McGill Fans Rally
As Red Posts Fall

In addition to viewing the Red team go down to ignominious defeat at the hands of the Queen's twelve in Saturday's football game, McGill supporters were further incensed at the end of the tussle when the small band of Tricolor collegians suddenly rushed on to the field and tore down the goal posts at the eastern end of the Stadium.

The Red fans rallying at the double insult, rushed on to the field to support the honor of Alma Mater. The Tricolor fans, outnumbered five to one, could only manage to drag the posts half way across the field, where yielding to the Red pressure they abandoned them. A wild free-for-all ensued and punishment was freely meted out to both sides, especially to the Tricolor boys.

Kingstonians who return home with black eyes and red schnozzles can at least say that they were successful in tearing down the posts, even if they were unsuccessful in dragging them all the way across the field.

Battle-scarred McGillians can also proudly say that they did their bit for the honor of "Old McGill."

Famous Specialist Spoke Last Friday

Dr. Jackson Explained New Method Of Inside
Diagnosis

Dr. Chevalier Jackson, famous Philadelphia laryngologist, addressed a large gathering of doctors and students, in the Biological Building last Friday, under the auspices of the Alpha Omega Alpha Society, on the subject, "Post Operative Pulmonary Complications." The lecture was illustrated by lanterns and moving pictures.

Dr. Jackson is the man who has done more than any other to perfect bronchoscopy, and through his efforts many children have been saved from death and invalidism. Besides his inventions of instruments he has perfected many simple and efficacious methods of diagnosis.

During the presentation of the slides, the lecturer described the method he has developed for the removal of foreign bodies from the lungs by the insertion of tubes through the mouth and which is known as Bronchoscopic aspiration. The slides shown demonstrated interesting cases of obstructions and abscesses in the lung; the results which were evident in the photographs taken before and after aspiration were explained according to the above method.

German Students To Convene This Week

German students who have taken more than one year of the language will convene this Thursday in the Union when the German Club holds its first meeting of the season. Henry Schaffhausen who has spent the last year in Germany will relate his experiences as a student in Munich.

The executive announces that all students who are desirous of speaking the language and have the necessary qualifications are cordially invited.

A new supply of German Ueder have been obtained which will be sung during the meeting. This will increase last year's repertoire and will give the members a greater opportunity of using their singing ability. Refreshments will be served for which a nominal sum of 10 cents will be charged.

Bird Songs To Be Feature Of Next Music Club Meeting

At four o'clock on Thursday afternoon of this week the Music Club will hold a meeting in the Common Room of R. V. C. Miss Louise Murphy will give a program of Bird Songs. All R. V. C. students interested in music, particularly freshettes, are invited to be present.

Student Service

A Vesper Service meeting was held yesterday morning for students by the S.O.A. The choir comprising twelve members was led by Phillips Motley.

Alumnae Society Shows Appreciation By Presenting Him With Clock

Was Regarded as Indispensable At All Teas And Receptions

Hyland is leaving.

The sad news was broken at the last meeting of the Alumnae Society on Friday night. No longer will his kindly face greet the co-eds in their comings and goings, for after to-night, R. V. C. will no longer have a porter.

"The success of our various functions were almost always due to the wonderful help of Hyland. No tea or reception committee was ever complete without his help. Not only did he make all the arrangements but he even told us what to do and how to do it," said Mrs. M. A. Phelan when she presented W. G. Hyland with a mantle clock as a token of appreciation of his kind and thoughtful services, on behalf of the Alumnae Society at the meeting. During his eighteen years as porter of the R. V. C., Hyland has seen many changes take place at the College. He has seen the characters of the incoming students change from shy and eager freshettes to sophisticated and blase seniors.

At the Alumnae meeting, Mr. G. Kemp appealed to the society on behalf of the Federated Charities explaining the work of the organization. Miss Hazel Murchinson gave a report of the conference of the International Federation of University Women which took place at Edinburgh last summer and which she attended as the delegate of the McGill Alumnae Society. Lady Currie was elected Honorary President of the Society.

Workshop Plays All Ready For Staging

Final Rehearsal To Be Held Tonight In

After three weeks of intensive rehearsing the Workshop Department is ready for the final rehearsal tonight in the Association Hall of the Central Y.M.C.A.

"Fancy Free" by Stanley Houghton portrays an amusing episode in the life of a young married couple who have tired of one another. Each unknown to the other has left home and fireside to elope with another companion. Complications arise when the two men meet in the writing-room of a hotel, and so discover their mutual lapses of conduct. Many novel situations are introduced. This play is one of the most amusing written by the popular English author.

"Smoke-Screens" though written in a more serious vein has plenty of sparkling humour, which has made it a great favourite with modern audiences. In it a very modern young lady philosophizes in a witty manner upon her day and generation.

The last play of the evening will be J. M. Barrie's "Shall We Join the Ladies." This is the first part of an unfinished play originally produced at the opening of the Royal Dramatic Academy Theatre. It abounds with Barrie's well known humour.

Set Price Upon Head Of Escaped Criminal

An interesting side-light is cast on the efficacy of the English Police and prison systems by the announcement that a criminal convicted for manslaughter to Dartmoor Gaol has effected his escape, and is believed to have fled the country for Canada.

Warnings have been issued for his arrest, and the authorities believe him to have made for Montreal, where he expects to lie hidden until the search has died down. This convict is the first man to have successfully broken out of the gaol, which is recognized as the best and safest prison in England; so that his escape is regarded as a severe blow to the prestige of the institution from which not even the notorious Charlie Peace was able to make a safe get-away.

The case on which he was convicted a year ago, caused considerable comment in the country, as the man was a gentleman. Captain Dennant by

Lack of a good kicker told the usual sad tale in eloquent fashion last Saturday afternoon at the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium, as the Queen's University senior twelve crashed the winning column of the Canadian Intercollegiate League by handing the McGill grid squad a 12-1 setback before 8,000 people.

Up against as powerful a punter as Howie Carter, stellar Tricolor kicking half, the only thing that could have helped the Redmen was the forward pass. But the pass was fickle: it failed to function; it refused to click; as a result, the dynamo of the college circuit came through to victory with an appreciable margin, and relegated McGill's aspiring titlists to the cellar, which they now share together.

When They Needed It Most
And all this happened just when the Redmen needed it most. Joe Breen's Mustangs returned Varsity's compliment of the previous week, and galloped rough-and-ready over the helpless Blueboys to the tune of 22-8 in London. A win for the McGillians here would have placed them definitely in the running for the intercollegiate laurels. As it is, the local footballers have only a slim mathematical chance of winning.

Although the play was for the most part in McGill territory, the Redmen really held the edge on the day's play. It was the superb kicking of Carter and Davoud, and the clever all-around backfield work of the latter, that kept the action in the local collegians' zone. In line-plugging, the Redmen were superior, netting 34 yards more than the Tricolors, and crashing their way to six first downs, as compared to their opponents' one. McGill ran back Queen's kicks 91 yards, whilst the Kingstonians only ran the Redmen's punts back 20 yards.

Essentially A Kicking Contest
It was the consistently good booting of the Tricolor punters that de-

The Poor Scholar

THE man who spends his time in the pursuit of knowledge seems to be held in low esteem around here. He is not regarded as a real college student at all. He does not go to rugby games; he does not join any societies or go to any dances; he does not cry "rah, rah" when his superiors tell him to. Books, lectures, or the laboratory occupy his time, and he peers at the printed word far into the night.

Of course, if he has eyes or ears for anything outside his work, he is not long left in peace. He is urged to get out and dance; to be a sport and come and listen to someone who will tell him to be a sport; to go to meetings and vote for people whom he does not know; to emancipate his individuality from the tyranny of books and submerge it in the beneficent rule of alleged student leaders. The poor individual is regarded as an incomplete man if he does not follow the general example of his fellows.

Revolutionary as the idea may be, we nevertheless think that the scholar has a place at college. For one thing, there is an extensive library of which he may make use. There are intelligent professors who very likely know more than they dare reveal in lectures. And in his defense it may be argued that the scholar is not very much of a nuisance, he makes little noise and takes up little room, and he provides a passive target for those who wish to bandy about the word "apathy".

It can be further said that the scholar even does some good. He may acquire enough learning to later become a professor and thus ensure the continuance of universities. He may come across a new twig of the tree of knowledge. He may write a great book, or become a great specialist. And the world may be the better for him, though he has never grown hoarse at an intercollegiate struggle of made his head ache at an undergraduate social evening.

As the scholar is a one-sided man, lacking many of the more popular accomplishments, he will naturally come in for much criticism. But the world can do with an occasional one-sided man. They help life to have more meaning for the others, they add to our store of achievements and hopes. It is well not to have too many of them, but the universities must be careful that they do not abolish them altogether. Scholars should be ranked somewhere near athletes, executives, debaters, and the like, when we consider those things which go to make up a complete university.

Text Books

THE ever increasing popularity of college book exchanges, second-hand shops and the like, bears eloquent testimony to the high price of new books. The price of college text books, already very high, has shown no tendency whatever to drop, and in some cases has even gone up.

This state of affairs may be directly traced to the policy followed by the publishing companies. The more editions a publisher can put out of a certain book, he will do so, whether it contains anything new or not. Only this year, there have appeared new editions of the Trigonometry and Elementary Algebra books used in the last years at High Schools and the first year at Colleges. To the ordinary person this may not seem very serious, but it has two very definite effects.

First it renders obsolete all the previous editions which have appeared, and as a result it is practically an impossibility to resell them. This alone entails a hardship to many students. Secondly it is a well known fact that the greater the production and standardization of a good, the lower becomes its cost; therefore it may be plainly seen that the more editions a publisher is able to bring forth of a certain book, the higher the price will be to the buyer—the benefit of mass production being entirely lost. Thus many books are dearer this year although the cost of labor and raw materials are considerably lower.

THE THEATRE

Rosa Ponselle, Soprano

The music of the Gods, cloaked in the dramatic splendour of life's tragedies and loves—this filled the theatre, and carried the listeners up out of their seats into some ethereal glory. It was Rosa Ponselle singing, in such a manner as Montreal rarely hears, singing to an audience such as Montreal rarely sees, a full house.

Ponselle needed no half-a-dozen songs with which to create her atmosphere. A moment's concentration during the first chords of the accompaniment sufficed, and she launched into the opening aria, "O Divina Afrodite" with the beauty of voice, the studied gesture, and the perfect intonation that was characteristic of everything she sang right down to her last encore, "O Sole Mio".

What can words say of her voice that can portray its true depths of feeling, its unfathomable richness, its range, and its resonance? Technique finds its origin in voices such as these, that is the intricacies and the coloratura that such a man as Rossini imagined, and wrote upon paper with the hope that some day it would be sung as he intended. Add to this her ability to portray the tragedy that is to be found in such a song as Schubert's "Der Erlkönig" or Arensky's "On Wings of Dream" and the complete artist is found, the actor-singer, in all the senses this might imply.

To be faithful to the concert, one should write a paragraph on each number, but this being impossible, one must pick at random, for there was little that was much better or any worse than its predecessor. Among her first encores, Ponselle sang the well known "Carry Me Back" but she imparted such spirit to this as to make it appear an aria from a great American opera, rather than one of its simple plantation ballads.

She was not at all tragedy, this singer. For the moment, one could hardly imagine that the Ponselle who sang the gay Neapolitan Serenade was the same one that later cried over the misfortunes of her young one in Sadero's Lullaby. And the ultra-modern "Calaban" to Shakespearean words, she made it weird and aboriginal, and by her movement suddenly reminded one of that strange dancer Mary Wigman. "The Night Wind", the Habenera from "Carmen"—it is merely necessary to mention their names, and the reader can best imagine their rendering. In fact the reader would best imagine the entire concert, and then realize that he has fallen short of the actuality.

Mr. Stuart Ross the accompanist had the difficult task of providing a background to a singer that demanded an orchestra, and he did it well. His own solo interludes were entirely in keeping with the performance, and were marked by crisp playing.

The Montreal Orchestra

STARTING where it left off last year, the Montreal Orchestra opened its third season yesterday afternoon with a program of highly melodic offerings, that brought out its characteristic rich tones, well modulated volume, and clear interpretations. Once again, one must pay compliment to the strings which are better than ever, having improved their pizzicato, an early weak point, and playing in unprecedented accord. The winds, too, after a patchy beginning caught up to the general spirit, and seemed in the end too eager—the brass in particular.

Mr. Douglas Clarke, leading the orchestra, gives very clear, somewhat romantic readings of the scores. This was most discernible in the Cesar Franck D minor Symphony, a work which is hardly to be surpassed for richness of melody. The transference of the themes from one section of the orchestra to any of the others, very noticeable in this symphony, was handled adeptly, never causing any sudden harshness and always showing a remarkable control. Interpreted thus, the symphony showed almost too much of goodness, that seems to amaze overwhelmingly.

In direct contrast, the Gotterdammerung Funeral Music by Wagner, played in tribute to the late Professor Waugh, made the orchestra work furiously to achieve the difficult combination of sorrow and intense emotion. In this number, as in most of Wagner, the strong brass section showed its worth.

There were two more contrasts on the program. The Ballet Suite by Lull was played with a delicacy that seemed impossible to expect of such an orchestra, and gave the wood winds an opportunity to come out more clearly and to better avail than during any other part of the concert. In antithesis was the last number, the fourth movement of Holst's "Planets", Jupiter. The joyous bustle is apparent from the opening note, an effect which demanded all the strength and volume of the orchestra. Nevertheless, while most of the instruments were busy playing the same theme, in one octave or another, they were not so uncontrolled as to drown the chirpings of the occasional wood wind.

If the success of this concert is further built up, then this group must become inevitably a matter for civic pride. The orchestra is in the main responsible, but there were one or two details that in addition will help to this end. The most important is the addition of program notes, which were lucid and instructive, a compliment to their writer, Mr. R. de H. Tupper, the secretary of the Faculty of Music, and bassoon player in the orchestra. The second change is in the re-arrangement of the players, which brings more of the different instruments to the fore than was possible previously. Good work, and better prospects!

THE CAPITOL

Contrary to the usual Hollywood custom, both the hero and heroine die at the end of "One Way Passage," playing at the Capitol this week. Kay

Francis as Joan Ames, and William Powell as Dan Hardisty, meet in a Hong Kong bar, and travel to America together. Dan conceals the fact that he is a convicted murderer in the custody of a husky but dumb detective. The story is of their life in the short time allotted to them by fate. As a matter of fact Aline MacMahon as the fake countess practically steals the show. Kay Francis and William are their usual selves and turn in a good performance.

The second feature "Cabin in the Cotton," with Richard Barthelmess, is only fair. Dick plays the son of the "poor white trash," who gets himself an education and ends up by settling the dispute between the planters and the tenants to the satisfaction of all concerned. Bette Davis plays an effective part as the daughter of the planter who falls in love with him and succeeds in making a monkey out of him.

THE PALACE

Little needs to be said about "Smilin' Through" now showing at the Palace Theatre. The mere fact that the management has decided to hold it over for a second week, is sufficient proof of its merit. Norma Shearer, taking the leading part, excels herself in this charming romance, and for the first time in her screen career plays a dual role. Frederic March also in a double role, plays his part well, except for the fact that his attempt to appear an American seems rather forced. The supporting cast includes Leslie Howard, as the unrelenting uncle, O. P. Heggie, Ralph Forbes and Beryl Mercer. On the whole "Smilin' Through" ranks among the best pictures seen in Montreal for some time.

AT LOEW'S

A master of ceremonies who is not too inane, a violinist whose pantomimic actions remind one of Harpo Marx, a naive blond who dances with unusual grace for the vaudeville stage, a novel and short "death-defying" stunt, a couple of eccentric dancers, and a dance revue which does not bore—all these go into making the vaudeville presentation at Loew's this week one of the most entertaining that has reached this city in a long while.

"Madison Square Garden" with Jack Oakie as star, introduces to the film audiences all the well-known sports writers in person—Damon Runyon, Grantland Rice, et al. These come into the picture for brief moments as do noted boxing and wrestling stars of the past—Zbysco, Jack Johnson, Tom Sharkey and more. The film has a neat touch of originality, particularly since Jack Oakie loses the important fight. Good, too, because it isn't the ordinary fighting story of a rise from fame to fortune.

THE IMPERIAL

Songs that one remembers and attractive chorus settings make the operette "La Fille et Le Garçon" at the Imperial this week a distinct success. Lillian Harvey, as the girl, plays her part cleverly; her grace and prettiness coupled with Henry Garat's good voice provide pleasant entertainment. A chorus of girl bellhops in a fashionable hotel is used as naturally as is possible in a musical comedy and in artistic and symmetrical settings that show rare taste. A scheming aunt, trying to arrange an advantageous marriage for her already married niece, produces many amusing situations.

The feature is well supported by the comedy, a French version of Mack Sennet's "Gorilla Love". Amateurs in a savage country are funny enough to cause lots of laughter. Crazy Kat and a news reel fill out the bill, while on the stage four local singers help to fix in the memory some of the hits from the feature. Of these, "Je suis comme ça, c'est mon caractère", is the best.

CINEMA DE PARIS

Seldom do we see a programme comprising two such different films as "Une Erreur Judiciaire" and "La Croix Du Sud," both being so human and interesting.

The first is a burlesque trial and conviction of an innocent poacher, who, his time being up, experiences greater difficulty in getting out of jail, though he is found innocent, than if guilty, and who finally gets mixed up in a bitter election campaign.

In the next film we see a strange life and civilization, with its exotic music and songs, and we readily appreciate the feelings of the "son of the desert" who leaves everything to return to the fascinating country where the southern cross shines high in the sky and burns deep in his heart.

One film brings laughter, the other breathes nostalgia and mystery. Laughter and sadness: 'tis life....

CORRESPONDENCE

Wants Songs

Editor,

McGill Daily,

Basement of Union House.

Dear Sir:—

As a staunch and loyal supporter of the Arts Undergraduate Society I'm for more and better smokings of the type held last Thursday. But what about more songs? At the present time our repertory seems complete with "Put on your white sweater" and "James McGill". Even if we do repeat the chorus half-a-dozen times there still isn't enough to go around. We should take the budding young song writers who function so well for the Red and White Revue to task and set their noses to the grindstone. We want more songs!!

Scores Frosh

The Editor,

McGill Daily,

Dear Sir:—

I would like to reply to two fresh freshmen, namely Sam Freshman and Joe College, through the medium of your paper.

The first impression that the upperclassmen get is that the FRESHMEN CAN'T TAKE IT. It is evident that this year's crop of freshmen are spineless jelly-fish. We (the upperclassmen) regret that the freshmen have taken the wrong attitude towards us. They should consider themselves extremely lucky to be allowed such a privilege as was bestowed upon them last Tuesday.

As for Sam and Joe I happen to know them and I know that they got more than their share of the "cream of the crop". And yet they kick! If these freshmen claim that they could not hold their own with the upperclassmen what chance would they have of doing so with the freshmen?

Yours truly,

A. Algernon Zilch.

Ban Magazine

Buffalo, N. Y. — Publication of "The Bison" undergraduate publication of the University of Buffalo, has been banned by the students' activities committee because of alleged slanderous statements and jokes.

Dr. A. Bertram Lemon, chairman of the committee, charged that the magazine had printed statements and jokes reflecting on the character of several students and campus organizations.

The Bison was severely criticized a year ago and suspension threatened when several jokes printed in the magazine had received nation-wide publication over a radio network.

McGill Wins First Game Vs. Varsity

English Rugby Fifteen Scores 11-0 In Rain At Toronto

FORWARDS SHOW UP WELL IN LOOSE PLAY

Butterfield, Grimes-Graeme, And Rice Get Tries; Others Good

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 29. — (Special to McGill Daily) — On Saturday, McGill's English Rugby fifteen scored their first win of the season against Varsity in the annual intercollegiate two-game series, beating the home team by 11 points to nil. The whole game was played in very unfavorable weather, as it rained practically incessantly from soon after the start until the end of the match.

Combination good
A feature of the game was the excellent play of the McGill pack, who took every advantage of the wet ground to make some useful dribbles and loose rushes, which were in a large measure responsible for their opponents' not scoring. Behind the scrum, with a set of backs D. Butterfield greatly changed from previous combinations, and handling a greasy ball, the ability of the McGill team in this division of the game showed up most favorably.

at only one period of the game, when, As far as the actual play was concerned, Toronto looked like scoring after the resumption, they pressed fifteen minutes, but in spite of the excellent work of the scrum-half, Lawson, the fine wheeling and dribbling of the visiting pack kept the line intact. During the rest of the game, McGill were getting the most of the play from both tight and loose scrums, and with fine backing up by the forwards, kept Varsity penned in their own half. After play had gone

Intermediate Track Stars Retain Crown In Meet With R.M.C.

Medley Relay Most Spectacular Event On Program

JAMIESON SETS MARK

Wisdom And Bernstein Prove High Scorers For Respective Teams

MCGILL trackmen won their second meet of the season when the seconds successfully defended on Friday the title won last year over R.M.C. The final point score was 74-59. One record was broken on the Stadium track, when Jamieson sped over the three miles in 15 minutes and 55 seconds. This new time was 11 4-5 secs. better than the old mark.

Wisdom of R. M. C. turned in the best individual performance of the day with a total of 11 points. He captured the 220 hurdles and the 440-yd. run and placed in the 220-yd. dash. Rainnie was runner-up with a win in the high jump, a second in the shot put, and a third in the high hurdles for nine points. Bernstein was high scorer for the Redmen taking the 100-yd. dash and coming second in the 220, for a total of eight points.

Relay Spectacular
The medley relay was the best event of the meet. It was run in two 220's, a 440 and a final 880. Finn and Wickson started the final 880 on even terms and ran neck-and-neck for one and three-quarter laps. In the dash down the final stretch neither men could draw away — with a last burst of speed Wickson broke the tape with Finn hard on his heels. It was a fitting climax to a great afternoon of sport.

Arts Rugby Squad Beats Commerce

ON Friday afternoon, Arts rugby representatives, led by the spectacular dashes and faultless kicking of Ross Wilson, their brilliant ground-gaining half, completely routed the courageous Commerce by the decisive score of 11-0. The play was fast and open, with the classicists superior in every department of the game.

The first score, a touchdown, was the result of a fumble by Conklin, Denton snapping up the ball to cross the line. Wilson converted neatly, and later raced 35 yards for the final counter. Ebbitt, Farmer and Findley starred for the Commerce cause, but to no avail.

The Line-up
Arts (11):—Henderson, Duff, Wilson, Crutchfield, MacLennan, Beddoes, Brenhouse, Dixon, Maxwell, Calder, Denton, Wayland.
Commerce (0):— Conklin, Farmer, Turner, Lang, Laing, Smythe, MacLean, R., MacLean, C., Cuskerat, Duff, Findley, Joedicke, Gorman, Ebbitt, Fulcher, McGill, Dadson, Moran, Gregson.

Soccermen Vanquished By Varsity

Toronto Retains Title Won Last Year By 2-0 Victory

ALL the soccer team's efforts went for naught, when they were compelled to taste defeat at the hands of the Varsity squad at the Upper Field on Saturday in the first intercollegiate soccer game of the season. The Blue boys proved more consistent and showed a better brand of football in the second half, when McGill — being one goal down — should have applied maximum pressure to tie up the game and put them in the running for the title, which now is destined to remain in Hart House for yet another year.

First Half Even
Although the second half was all Varsity's, the same can not be said of the play during the first period. McGill, as usual started rather slowly, but soon began to make their presence felt and many well-organized rushes would have found their mark but for the fine performance of Little in the Blue goal. The Red forwards made the mistake of directing all their efforts to the top and corners of the net, whither Little — who is well over six feet tall — found no difficulty in projecting his body. Were it not for the superb performance of this man, the Redmen would have certainly had a goal or two to their credit before the interval, because during that time, though the play swung back and forth, the Varsity goalie had by far more chances to handle than did Ross in the McGill nets.

The first Varsity goal came quite

BOB SHAW CHOSEN CAPTAIN OF POLO FOR THIS SEASON

Red Junior Poloists Meet Columbus Blues In League Game

AFTER two nominees had voluntarily withdrawn, election of a senior water polo captain for the season 1932-33 came to a close, with Bob Shaw, Eng. '33, filling that position. He succeeds Chuck Wayland. The election was necessitated, due to the fact that the captain-elect of water polo, Russ Payton, did not return to McGill this year. Bob Shaw has been with the polo squad for several seasons, although unable to play on the 1931 team due to illness. This year, however, he is holding down a regular defence position on the senior roster. This election completes the polo club's list of officials for 1931-32, with Ken MacLure, junior water polo captain, Rod Stovel, manager and Art Nanckeville, assistant manager.

Tonight, at the Columbus tank, the Red Seconds play against the Columbus Blues in a regular league fixture. The Blues, like the Redmen have not won a game to date. If the juniors do not defeat Columbus, they will have to be content to occupy the cellar position in the league standing. In Thursday's game, the McGill lads went down to the M.A.A.A. Blues by the score of 7-3, in a close fought affair, which showed distinct improvement in the brand of play.

The seniors have an off night as far as a game is concerned, but a regular practice is scheduled for 5.30 p.m. The seniors also lost out to M.A.A.A. on Thursday by a 4-0 count, and they will have to do some hard work in preparation for their tilt with the Y.M.H.A. this coming Thursday, especially since the latter are the present league leaders.

Women Students Will Hold Unique Swimming Races

Meet Enables Non-Swimmers To Exhibit Prowess In Water

THE annual M. W. S. A. A. swimming meet takes place this year on Nov. 15 at the Knights of Columbus pool. The program of events has been outlined with a view to enabling non-swimmers, as well as swimmers, to partake.

There will be five races against time — 25 yards free style, 100 yards free style, 25 yards back crawl, and an obstacle race. The fifth event, which has been left open exclusively for non-swimmers, is a 25-yard tire swim. It is hoped that many aspiring mermaids will park their cars, grab a tire, and come in for this event. There will be a 25-yd. side stroke event for form.

Trophy Award
Each year must be represented by four swimmers for the inter-class relay race. The winners will be presented with a trophy, and the highest individual scorer of the meet will be awarded a handsome cup.

Diving, always a popular part of the program, will again occupy a prominent place among the various swimming events. There are three diving events listed — standing low and high dives, and one optional dive. The list of events and the entry lists will be posted on the Arts and R. V. C. notice boards within a few days. All women students are eligible for this meet.

A high wind was blowing making the contest difficult for the participants. 18 arrows were shot at 50 yards, 18 at 40, and 18 at 30.

Kicking Duel Gives First Queen's Win

cided the issue. McGill's only hope against this method of warfare was a forward pass attack; it failed, and with its downfall went the Redmen's hopes for victory. Of 20 attempted forwards, only three were successful, and those for a total gain of 56 yards; three were intercepted, and by these, the McGill gridmen lost as much as they had previously gained.

The tackling of both teams was the one feature of the day. Harry Griffiths stood out for the Redmen, and Storms, Queen's flying wing who counted the only major score, was the best for the Kingstonsians. Le-tourneau, at middle wing, was also mighty effective in that capacity.

Early Indications
From the start, with the wind in their favor, and kicking on first down, it was evident that the Tricolor were going for the solitary points. Their tactics first bore fruit when Davoud kicked from the McGill 50 to Hammond on the Redmen's five-yard stripe. Hammy led the ball roll, and it continued for about eight yards behind the line, where Ralph grassed him as he attempted to get away.

Shortly before the quarter ended, Hammond fumbled Davoud's punt behind the line, and after a mad scramble in which several Queen's players strove to grab the sphere, the Red halfback retrieved, and was held for a safety touch. In the second canto, Stevens lifted a 50-yard punt to Davoud behind the line, and the latter was smeared by Young and Le-tourneau for McGill's only counter. The half time score remained 3-1 in Queen's favor.

Play Opens Up
In the third period, the play opened perceptibly, and on a fumble by Stevens, Queen's recovered on McGill's 15, from where Davoud kicked a placement. The third stanza ended with the score at 6-1. It was in the middle of the final frame that Queen's scored their try. Queen's had the ball on McGill's 35; Davoud kicked behind the line to Hammond, who made a great attempt to run it out. Just as he was about to clear, he bumped somebody hard, and the ball bounded out of his grasp. Storms, Queen's flying wing, gathered it up for five points, and Davoud converted to bring the Queen's total to 12. Final score: McGill, 1; Queen's, 12.

Novel Dinner Held By Hung Tao Club

Colonel Bovey Welcomed Members And Friends Of Society

At the dinner of the Hung Tao Society, held Thursday night, Col. Wilfred Bovey delivered the address of welcome, in which all members and friends of the Society were given a most cordial reception. The dinner, for which elaborate preparations had been made, was very well attended.

The dinner was held amidst picturesque surroundings, and to those who had never before attended a Chinese restaurant, the romantic environment claimed as much attention as the novel food.

Although forks and knives were provided for those who wanted them, the majority did not use them, but rather took advantage of the opportunity to wield chopsticks, albeit with a lack of grace.

A Chinese member of the Society spoke in Cantonese, and was replied to by Nancy Swann, who spoke in Mandarin. Throughout the dinner, Chinese music and songs were furnished by a gramophone brought by Col. Bovey.

The following is the menu of the dinner:

1. Yin Wo Keng (Birds' Nest Soup).
2. Hung Shew Yu (Red Roast Dove).
3. Bor Lap Arp Pien (Pineapple Duck).
4. Gai Chow Mein (Chicken and Rice).
5. Lin Tse Keng (Lotus Almond Lily).

Operatic Society

The business manager, Ralph Linton, is in urgent need of someone to take charge of the scenery for the "Yeomen of the Guard." As the scenery is all drawn to measurement and there is only one set the person in charge will not have much work to do outside of the general supervision. Although many have applied to help with the painting and construction of the scenery there is still room for more so inclined. If interested please see the business manager or leave their name with any of the executive of the club.

Half-Time
This goal undoubtedly took much of the pep out of the Redmen's play. It seemed as if this was not to be their day, and as the teams began the second half with the score at 1-0 in favor of the Blue, this fact became more pronounced. With the exception of several shots from Innes and Nolan, which Little succeeded in handling, the Redmen were forced to play defensive ball by an inspired Blue team that outdid by far its performance of the preceding period. Once Cooper was through on his own and sent the hopes of McGill supporters soaring with a wicked shot that appeared earmarked for a goal; the ball, however, hit the inside of the right upright and bounced out again. At the time, Goalie Little was nowhere near the ball.

This seemed to be the end of McGill's chances at equalizing, for a few minutes later Varsity swept down almost unopposed and made it 2-0 from close in, giving Ross little chance to save. McGill attempted to retaliate, but met with stubborn resistance on all sides. The game ended with Toronto winning by 2-0.

The teams lined up as follows:
Toronto: Little, R. Jack, Cowling, A. Organ, W. Whitla, D. McCullough, A. Carbert, R. Robertson, D. Davidson, Rawlinson, Aldridge, Schuett.
McGill: K. Ross, J. Harkness, A. Reece, Minnion, G. Owen, Flood, Crabtree, J. Nolan, F. Cooper, Innes, E. Carter, Astwood, Janikun.

on in this manner for the first 20 minutes, the McGill attack broke through, and from a neat run by Thomson, in the centre, Grimes-Graeme scored a try between the posts, which was converted by Butterfield.

Butterfield Scores
In the second half, McGill, breaking down the strong Varsity attack that opened the half, worked down the field with a series of forward rushes, and Rabbett picked up neatly from a loose scrum. Butterfield was backing up well, took his pass and went over for the second try, falling narrowly with the kick. After this the game was virtually finished, as McGill were outplaying the home side in every department, with Wilson, Thomson, Rabbett, and Wakefield making everything of their opportunities, and Butterfield and Duns-muir showing up well in a pack that was playing like one man.

Ten minutes before full time Rice scored again for McGill, but failed with the kick, leaving the final score at 11-0. When the state of the ground and the changed positions of the backs is considered, the team gave a very creditable performance, and the forwards, with plenty of loose work to do, showed that they have the talent to do more than follow the ball about, when they take the trouble to combine, and follow the instructions of the leader in the open play. Rabbett fitted in remarkably well at scrum-half in spite of the fact that he is unused to the position and was playing with a converted centre, Wootton, at fly; Wakefield gave a fine performance at full-back, while the rest of the team were consistently good throughout the game.

Gill's chances at equalizing, for a few minutes later Varsity swept down almost unopposed and made it 2-0 from close in, giving Ross little chance to save. McGill attempted to retaliate, but met with stubborn resistance on all sides. The game ended with Toronto winning by 2-0.

The teams lined up as follows:
Toronto: Little, R. Jack, Cowling, A. Organ, W. Whitla, D. McCullough, A. Carbert, R. Robertson, D. Davidson, Rawlinson, Aldridge, Schuett.
McGill: K. Ross, J. Harkness, A. Reece, Minnion, G. Owen, Flood, Crabtree, J. Nolan, F. Cooper, Innes, E. Carter, Astwood, Janikun.
